Disappearance of AP's Czech Translator Gave Sign of Reds' Intentions

By WILLIAM N. OATIS
(Copyright 1953 by The Associated Press)

One night in February of 1951 the Prague radio broadcast that a policeman had been shot to death near Charles Square in downtown Prague. The killers had escaped. The public was asked to tell the police anything known about them.

In that killing, I saw only one item in the day-by-day grist of news that passed through the office. Actually, it was an event that was to wield an enormous influence on my own life.

About a month later Mrs. Hana Svoboda came into the office. She was the wife of Thomas Svoboda, one of my translators, and the mother of his baby daughter. She was looking for her husband, and was weeping.

He was off that day, and nobody in the office had seen him. His wife, who had a clerical job and had worked herself during the day, would say only that he had left the apartment where they lived with her parents, and had not come back.

Svoboda never came back to work either. I reported his disappearance to the Ministry of Information, which had approved his employment by The AP, and to the police.

But neither was any help in tracing him. And as I learned more about what had happened that day his wife had come looking for him, I was pretty sure I knew why.

While Svoboda was in the apartment with his mother-in-law, a strange man had come asking for him. Svoboda had talked with the man briefly in an undertone, and then both had left.

AS THEY WALKED down the street below, another man had fallen in behind them, and the three had vanished around a corner. That night, plainclothesmen had searched the apartment.

It seemed safe to guess that Svoboda was in the hands of the secret police. But, by virtue of the very nature of the secret police, it did not seem safe to say so—not out loud, anyway.

A few days after that, Paul Woydinek of my Czech staff said he had learned the trouble was that "that boy who's out of the country" had been connected with "some people that had something to do with the murder of that policeman."

I had never met "that boy who's out of the country." But I had heard a lot about him.

He was a chum of Svoboda's from college days, a young Czech refugee who lived in Paris and was in and out of Czechoslovakia from time to time.

It was fairly clear to me that he crossed the border illegally. But I was unaware of whatever else he might be doing. In fact I did not even know his name.

I had heard of him first from Nathan Polowetzky, my predecessor in charge of the Prague AP bureau. Polowetzky was "expelled from Czechoslovakia on grounds of 'unobjective reporting'" and came back to London in April, 1950, while I was waiting there for a visa to go into that country.

In talking with me about his work in Prague, he spoke of "a little guy"—he did not mention any name—that had given him news, a man that came from Paris but seemed well informed on doings in Czechoslovakia.

AFTER I GOT to Prague I heard from Czech employees that this man had given Polowetzky a story the Ministry of Information had cited as an example of "unobjective reporting"—a factual story on a coal mine strike in the Bohemian town of Kladno.

Woydinek did not show up for work April 2. I went to his room with an interpreter and found it sealed with paper tape. A neighbor told us what had happened:

About 6.30, as Woydinek was getting ready to go to the office, six plainclothesmen had walked in. Three had led him away. The other three had stayed, searched the place and sealed it.

Since Svoboda's arrest, we had seen strange men around our office. One, peering out from behind a curtain, had looked in now and then through our wide second-floor front windows from another window across the street. Others, haunting a passageway beside our building, had watched our visitors.

ON FRIDAY morning, April 20, I awoke about 8.30 in my room at the Ambassador Hotel and telephoned the office to see if there had been any news worth picking up on Prague's morning newscast.

Our old night watchman, who spoke only Czech and German, answered the telephone I asked for Peter Muntz, the translator who had been due on the job an hour and a half earlier. The old man said, "Nein, nein." "No, no."

I called Muntz's apartment. His wife said, "Mr. Oatis, my husband is at the office." I waited awhile and then called the office again. Again the watchman answered, but a moment later somebody else was on the wire, telling me in broken English that Muntz was not there.

It was a man whose voice I did not recognize. "And I thought, 'This is a cop. Muntz has been arrested, and if I go to the office I will be arrested too.'" I asked the man what he was doing there. He said he was fixing the teletype machines.

I drove to the U. S. Embassy I told the counselor, Tyler Thompson. I was afraid police were in my office. On his advice, I had Miss Mary Horak, an embassy secretary, telephone the office and speak Czech with the alleged teletype repairman. He told her exactly what he was doing to the machines, and we decided he was no impostor—and no policeman.

Richard G. Johnson, the vice consul, went with me to my office. The night watchman was still there. The printer repairman—whom I recognized immediately when I saw him, thought I had not recognized his voice—was just leaving. Muntz was nowhere in sight.

Board Approves Change

State Street Junior High Renamed 'Robert A. Taft'

The State Street Junior High School, Marion's newest junior high school building, will be known in the future as the Robert A. Taft Junior High School.

Approval of a change in the name was given at Monday night's meeting of the Marion Board of Education. The city's new high school and two of the junior high schools now honor men who have made outstanding contributions to local and national history. The name Robert A. Taft Junior High School was chosen in recognition of the late senator's statesmanship and his contribution to the nation.

WORK ON changing the lettering of the name of the school will get under way in the near future. The letters, which are raised, will be removed and the new name carved in the panel across the front of the building.

Other business included the setting up of a schedule of rent for use of the new high school building, the naming of two additional members on the athletic board, acceptance of one resignation, employment of several teachers and announcement of a meeting of the Associated Public School Systems here later this month.

The schedule of rentals at the new Harding High School is as follows: speech or band rooms, $25 where no admission is charged, and $35 where admission is charged; lunch room, without use of kitchen facilities and if no admission is charged, $50, with kitchen facilities $75, plus employment of kitchen staff; Sunday and holidays, $75 without kitchen facilities, and $100 with use of kitchen facilities and staff; auditorium-gym, $50 if no admission is charged, $100 where admission is charged. Addition of $25 on each rental for Sundays and holidays. A charge of $50 will be asked for rehearsals to be held on weekdays only. Regulations for use of the building call for no smoking in the auditorium-gym and no dancing on Sunday.

UPON the recommendation of Supt. Lester L. Dickey, the following teachers were employed: Miss Mary Helen Ley of Fort Wayne, Ind., fine arts in junior and senior high schools; Mrs. Genevieve Artz, home economics at Edison and Robert A. Taft Junior High Schools; Miss Jane Fickett of Tucson, Ariz., junior high mathematics; Mrs. Clover Mae Linscott, girls health at Harding; Mrs. Esther Frazier, mathematics at Robert A. Taft Junior High, temporarily. The resignation of John Finnegan, mathematics teacher at Edison, effective Sept. 30, was accepted.

The zone conference of the Associated Public School Systems will be held here Sept. 25 and 26, the superintendent advised the board.

Following conferences by the board of education and the athletic board it was agreed to reconstitute

Council Studies Parking Action On Church St.

Marion City Council discussed the possibility of repealing or more rigidly enforcing the Church St. 3 to 6 p.m. parking ban at a meeting last night.

Councilman Harold Fralich, sixth ward, started the discussion when he pointed out that many people still park on the south side of Church St. from Pearl St. to S. Vine St. during the no parking hours.

He said he felt that either the ban should be enforced or the ordinance—which was adopted three months ago—should be repealed.

Mayor Harold F. Robinson said police are enforcing the ban by ticketing all cars found parked in the no-parking zone. In answer to another question by Fralich, he said the fine for parking in the zone is $1. Fralich then asked why an impounding ordinance contained in the new city police code has not been used. Mayor Robinson answered this was not used because there is no place

More Oratory Due Tonight

Democrats Cheer as Adlai Needles GOP at Chicago

CHICAGO (AP)—Former President Truman seconded vigorously today Adlai E. Stevenson's blistering criticism of Eisenhower administration foreign policies at a Democratic rally last night.

Stevenson, the party's 1952 presidential nominee, told cheering Democrats at a $100-a-plate dinner the Republican administration had made "hollow political gestures" abroad interfered in affairs of other nations, permitted "smears at home" and had cut defense and foreign aid while tossing "threatening words" at the Communists.

The former Illinois governor said the announcement of defense cuts "followed by threatening words in Asia, sounded to me as though the administration was saying to the Communists: 'One false move from you guys and we'll cut the national defense by another billion dollars.'"

Stevenson, who has been invited to tell President Eisenhower later about his conversations with the top diplomats of the free nations, brings the Democratic rally to a close tonight with a televised "non-partisan" report to the nation of his recent world tour.

The White House has said an announcement might be forthcoming later in the week on the project.

Korea Cloud Hangs Over U.N. Opening

Delegates Are Solemn At Prospects of Big Battle on Peace Talks

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Russia and the Western powers squared off for 12 weeks of bitter fighting today as the U.N. General Assembly gathered again to debate such issues as Korea and the seating of Red China in the world organization.

As the diplomats assembled for the opening this afternoon (2 p.m. EST) of their eighth annual session, Western delegates were confident the 60-nation body would sidetrack the Chinese question for the remainder of this year at least.

Feel UN Will Stand Pat

They also believed the Assembly would stand pat on its previous recommendation that the Korean peace conference be a two-sided negotiation rather than a round-table of belligerents and neutrals.

There was no indication just when Soviet Delegate Andrei Y. Vishinsky would bring up these two issues, but he was expected to raise them within the first few days of the session.

This afternoon's meeting was scheduled to be devoted to the election of an Assembly president, seven vice presidents and seven committee chairmen, who will constitute the powerful steering committee.

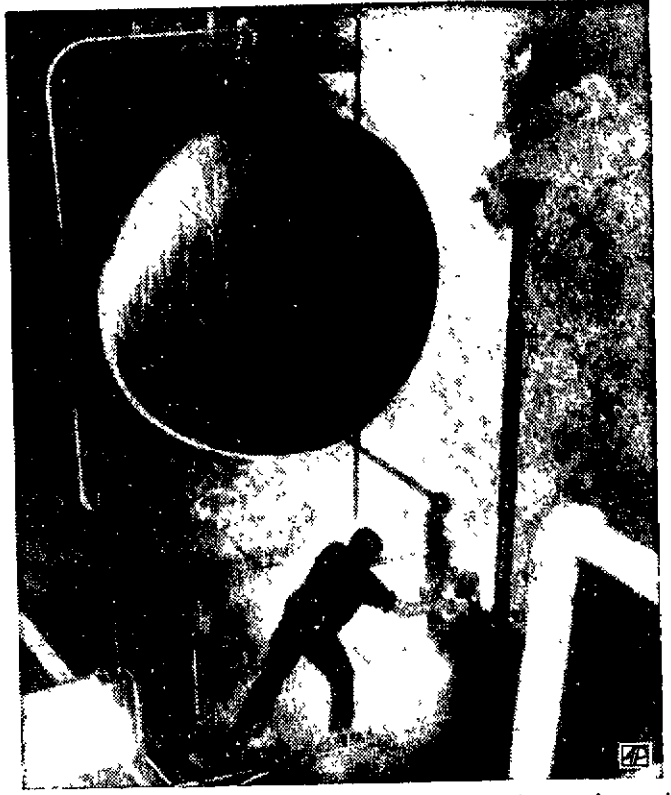

Mme. Pandit Favored

The colorful sister of India's Prime Minister Nehru, Mrs. Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit, was reported to have enough support for election as president, but Prince Wan Waihayakon of Thailand still was in the race. Mrs. Pandit had the support of both the Soviet bloc and the leading Western powers, including the United States.

The first fight over the China representation question may come in the credentials committee, which probably will meet Wednesday. That body would report back to the assembly itself, opening the way for a decision.

The United States and Britain already have agreed to back a

15 Candidates File for City Charter Posts

Listed Before Deadline To Give Others Chance To Circulate Petitions

Filed this morning with the Marion County Board of Elections were the names of 15 Marionites as candidates for members of the charter commission of the city of Marion to be voted on at the general election Nov. 3.

City charter commission candidates, as listed with the elections board, are Lawrence M. Sager of 205 Orchard St., Perry J. Bachelder of 715 Windsor St., Edith L. Brown of 270 Cummins Ave., Henry A. Mickley of 211 St. James St., Walter D. Moore of 899 Barks Ave., Carl F. Haberman of 637 Davids St., Roy H. Waddell of 280 Summit St., Robert R. Bush of 253 E. Walnut St., Robert E. Kibbey of 229 Johnston St., Frederick T. Merchant of 1182 E. Center St., Mary K. Birch of 340 Edgewood Dr., H. Francis McDonald of 489 Silver St., John J. Wissler of 475 Oak St., Max Birnbaum of 148 McWilliams Ct., and George B. Jonsson of 770 Oak Grove.

The petitions carried a total of 271 signatures, while only 154 names were required.

Selection of these 15 candidates was made by the home rule charter study committee with an eye to equal distribution of candidates in comparison with the city's six wards. Three candidates are from Ward One; two from Ward Two; three from Ward Three; three from Ward Four; two from Ward Five; and two from Ward Six.

The study committee filed petitions for the 15 candidates a week before the Sept. 23 deadline for filing in order that other interested candidates might file before the deadline. A total of 154 signatures is required before a petition can be filed with the elections board.

Reds Reshuffle Czech Regime, Seek Stability

Three Man Committee Replaces Presidium; Siroky Still Premier

VIENNA, Austria (AP)—Prague radio announced a sweeping reorganization of Czechoslovakia's Communist government today. The emphasis seemed to be on streamlining and centralizing operations rather than on purging disgraced officials.

Premier Vilem Siroky remained head of the government under President Antonin Zapotocky, but the "Soviet-style" presidium of premier and numerous vice premiers set up last February to control the government apparently was replaced by a three-man committee.

This new "high command," Prague Radio said, is composed of Siroky and two former presidium members, State Planning Chief Jaromir Dolansky and Defense Minister Alexei Cepicka, who become the new Cabinet's only vice premiers.

Along with Siroky and his two deputy premiers, Communist party boss Antonin Novotny continued a major figure in the Czech setup. He remained first secretary of the party's central committee and thus retained control of the powerful party organization.

The reorganization was the first

12% Increase To Be Sought By Volunteers

Costs of Operating, Expansion of Service Bring Greater Needs

The budget to carry on the work of the health and welfare agencies of Marion city and county for the coming year was announced today by Cutler A. McGrew, campaign chairman for the 1953-54 United Appeals drive.

This year's goal, approved at a meeting of the board of trustees of the United Appeals of Marion County Monday night, is $170,461.72.

Budgets Listed

Budgets of the agencies included in the United Appeals are as follows: Marion County Chapter of the American Red Cross, $38,580; Marion County Unit of the American Cancer Society, $13,500; Marion Community Foundation, $114,365; Marion County Heart Association, $3,996.72.

Agencies comprising the Marion Community Foundation and their budgets are: Family Service Society, $17,124; USO, $3,500; Salvation Army, $20,722; YMCA, $33,810; Boy Scouts, $17,145; Girl Scouts, $13,071; Emergency Hospitalization Fund, $500; Community Chest and Councils of America, Inc., $343; Community Chest operating budget, $8,170.

12 Per Cent Increase

Contributors will be asked to increase their subscriptions this year by approximately 12 per cent over last year's giving, the campaign chairman announced. This is due, he said, to the rising cost of operation for the participating agencies and expansion of the community service programs to meet Marion city and county's growth in welfare, health and civic needs.

The campaign will get under way Oct. 12. Committees named early in the summer have been active for the last several months outlining plans and organizing workers for the various divisions staging the campaign.

J. B. Bray, president of United Appeals, presided for last night's meeting, held in the office of the Marion Community Foundation on S. Main St.

Keel-Laying for Second Atomic Submarine Set

CROTON, Conn. (AP)—Navy Secretary Robert P. Anderson today hailed the atomic-powered submarine as "a marvelous new weapon" which can bottle up enemy warships half a world away from American shores.

Anderson's talk was prepared for keel-laying ceremonies for the nation's second nuclear-powered undersea craft, the USS Seawolf. The first, the USS Nautilus, also is under construction here, and Anderson said she will have her builder's trials "soon—very soon."

May Answer Wednesday

Allies Await Red Reply On Prisoner Accounting

MUNSAN, Korea (AP)—The Communists may answer tomorrow Allied demands for an accounting of more than 3,000 U. N. military personnel, including 944 Americans, believed still in Red captivity.

The Joint Military Armistice Commission scheduled a meeting for 11 a.m. tomorrow (9 p.m. EST tonight), its first since the names of the missing men were turned over with the demand for a prompt accounting.

No Way of Knowing

A U.N. spokesman said there was no way of knowing whether a reply was forthcoming. The Communists, at the last commission meeting, said they would comment later.

In sharp contrast to previous displays of violence, 2,000 anti-Communist North Korean and Chinese prisoners were turned over to Indian custody in the Panmunjom neutral zone without incident.

The delivery went off smoothly as the Indian troops—who for six days have checked disturbances by the prisoners—took extra precautions to avoid outbreaks.

They moved Allied and Communist observers farther away from compounds housing the POWs and removed them from stations at some processing centers. The number of newsmen from each side allowed to watch the transfers was cut from 25 to 5 for each side.

Part of 8,000

The prisoners were part of 8,000 North Korean and 14,700 Chinese POWs who refused repatriation.

Nine North Koreans who had a change of heart after delivery to the Indians were turned over to the Communists for return to Red-run North Korea.

The Communists gave the transfer the full propaganda treatment. About 75 North Korean and Chinese officers plus a score or more Red correspondents applauded loudly throughout the 10 minute ceremony.

Adlai Speaks Tonight

CHICAGO (AP)—Five hundred radio and 70 television stations will carry Adlai E. Stevenson's speech tonight at the Civic Opera House.

The 30-minute address will begin at 9.30 p.m. EST and will be broadcast by all major radio networks and telecast by NBC-TV.

Faces Tough Choice

Benson Studies Ticklish Problem of Crop Control

By OVID A. MARTIN

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Eisenhower administration may in effect have talked itself into greater use of crop controls next year than it prefers by taking slaps at farm policies of the Truman administration.

Secretary of Agriculture Benson has a choice on whether to set up acreage planting allotments on the 1954 corn crop or to leave growers free to plant as much land to corn as they desire. Benson has said that as a general rule he dislikes federal controls on agriculture.

Less Restrictive

Allotments are less restrictive than rigid marketing quotas already approved by farmers for the 1954 wheat crop, in effect this year and to be continued next year for major types of tobacco, and likely to be imposed on cotton next season.

Farmers may abide by allotments or ignore them, whereas violations of quotas are subject to stiff penalty taxes. In the case of allotments, only those who comply with them are eligible for government price support aid. Usually, the allotments greatly influence planting operations of most farmers.

Criticized Brannon

Benson and several of his aides, in recent speeches, have sharply criticized former Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan because he did not invoke controls on wheat, cotton and other crops of which there is now a surplus. They said farmers would not now be confronted with surpluses and their attendant problems if the previous administration had used control authority available to it.

Recent hot, dry weather trimmed this year's probable corn crop enough to pull supplies below a level that would require Benson to invoke marketing quotas next year. Next month's production estimate may cut the estimated crop still more.

Drought Cuts Supplies

In the face of this situation, farm officials say there are good arguments for leaving corn completely free of controls another year. They say the drought in some parts of the country has reduced livestock feed supplies at a time when production of hogs, a major user of

The Oatis Story

Johnson said he could do nothing for him because he was a Czechoslovak citizen. "Now if you were to get arrested," he added—and I gathered that in that case he could take a hand.

That afternoon I went to Dr. Rudolf Popper, head of the press section of the Ministry of Information.

"Three of my employees are missing and I think they've been arrested," I said. "Am I going to get arrested?"

The swarthy, black-haired little man, who looked something like a thin Pierre Laval, asked me if I had a guilty conscience. I said, "No."

He leaned back in his chair in the tired way he had, looked down his face at me and said, "Why should you worry? You have semi-diplomatic status."

A Big Black Car

It was true that my official accreditation gave me something like diplomats' extra rations. But it was not true that it granted me diplomatic immunity from arrest.

That was Friday. On Sunday at about 10 a.m., I drove out of the public garage where I kept the office car and turned a corner on my way back to the hotel. In my rear view mirror, I saw another car pull away from the curb behind me.

It was a big, black, streamlined Tatra, a Czech model commonly used by the secret police. It kept a half block behind me. Was it following me? I would see.

Instead of going straight to the hotel, I made a detour around a block. The Tatra followed me all the way. When I parked in front of the hotel, it parked about a block behind.

Race to the Embassy

I hurried inside, picked up my key at the desk and dashed upstairs, two steps at a time, to my room on the third floor. I bolted the door and stood there with cold terror stabbing into my stomach. I decided to go to the embassy. That was U. S. territory, and Czech police could not reach me there. Without thinking to pick up even pajamas and shaving kit, I set out.

There were two ways from stairway to street—one through the front entrance, the other out a side door and down a passage way. I chose the second as the safer.

It was not necessary. Nobody recognizable as a detective was either in the lobby or out front. I slammed the car door and drove off. Down the street, the Tatra also pulled away from the curb.

Once I was in National Ave., I had a straight stretch of almost a mile down past the National Theater and across the Vltava River. Then a turn to the right and another mile's drive would bring me to the hilly side street on which the embassy fronted.

Started Gaining

My shadows — there were two men in the car behind — kept a discreet distance till after the turn. Then they started gaining on me.

I speeded up, trying to steer clear of the car tracks in the narrow brick street and wondering how it would be to blow a tire just then.

They speeded up, too, despite

heavy traffic. At length, the Tatra was the third car behind me. But a few seconds later I turned up the hill and parked opposite the embassy.

I looked back. The black automobile had not followed me into the side street. I ran across to the embassy gate. And for the first time in many minutes I felt safe.

Sgt. Harry Morrissey of the military attaché's office was on guard duty in the front office. I asked if the counselor, Thompson, was in. He said everybody had gone on a picnic except Ambassador Ellis O. Briggs, who was ill at home.

Returned to Office

"Do you want to talk to the ambassador?" he asked.

"No," I said, "I won't bother him."

I returned to the office. Another black Tatra picked up my trail and followed me all the way, parking up the street from the office.

I walked back and looked at the two men seated in it—a little bald fellow with a fringe of gray hair and a thin swarthy youth who looked Italian—both of them in shirtsleeves. I said, "StB?" (That is the Czech abbreviation for the official name of the secret police—the Státní bezpečnost (State Security).) The dark young man rotated an index finger beside his right ear. It was a gesture that means, in any language, "You have wheels in your head."

That evening I was lying on my bed at the hotel when Thompson telephoned, back from the picnic trail and followed me all the way, right. I told him I would see him the next day.

But I did not. Because the next day — Monday, April 23, 1951 — six men walked into my office and arrested me.

IN CHILDREN'S HOME

Two children were in the children's home Monday after police put their 20-year-old mother in city prison early Sunday morning. The mother left the children, a girl three and four, home alone Saturday night while she went out. She did not return home until 3 a.m. Sunday. Police arrested her on an open charge and took the children to the home.

Men's Knees Hot Item

Long Pants To Stay Despite Shorts Fad

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Men's knees have been the hottest item this summer in scattered sections of this land.

So now merchants are scanning the prospects for walking shorts, as they lay their plans for stocking up for next spring's trade.

And they are also noting that many manufacturers currently are busy raising prices on their next spring's lines of suits with trousers of regular length.

Some enthusiasts of the cult of baring the knobby male patella to the summer sun are predicting that shorts, either British or Bermuda, will soon supplant long pants as regulation hot weather wear. Merchants are wondering whether to order heavily now—or scantily.

The National Assn. of Retail Clothiers and Furnishers has been pondering this trend, too. It put the weighty question to its style committee.

Their verdict: Long pants are here to stay.

The committee admitted the Christian Dior type of trousers have made long strides in resorts, in suburbs ringing big cities, and among the gentlemen farmers. They noted the undimpled male knee even has been seen on occasion in the city.

In cafe society, remarks about knees have led to some pretty interesting brawls of late—threatening to supplant the topic of exchange of wives as the trademark of ruckuses among that highly publicized ilk.

But the style committee voted, 23 to 3, for long pants as the

Third Death Recorded In Fiji Islands Quake

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (AP)—A third earthquake death was reported today from the Fiji Islands in the southwest Pacific. A message from Viti Levu said an aged Fijian was killed by a landslide in the interior of the island.

Tremors, some of them severe, continued last night and early today following the quake and accompanying high wave of near-tidal proportions which struck yesterday. Many persons slept out of doors last night. Schools were closed today and several large shops in Suva did not open because of heavy damage.

In 1952 Canadians used about seven pounds of coffee per person compared with about three and three quarters pounds just before World War II.

Motorist Solves Empty Gas Tank Difficulty

ALAMO, MICH. (AP)—A motorist who ran out of gasoline a mile east of this southwest Michigan community hit on a novel plan when he found all the service stations closed at 3 a.m., Monday.

He punched a buzzer at the fire station, and explained later to a sputtering fire chief Ray Zantello that he hoped it would "get somebody up."

It roused Chief Zantello, his 10 volunteer firemen and most of the community—but the motorist got his gasoline. And in the excitement no one remembered to get his name.

members, merchants all, saw khaki slacks as increasing in popularity, and four even thought this variety, called chino, might overtake denim.

The news about prices is less reassuring to the conservative family man.

Clothing makers are currently unveiling their lines for next summer's suits. Higher prices will mark most of them.

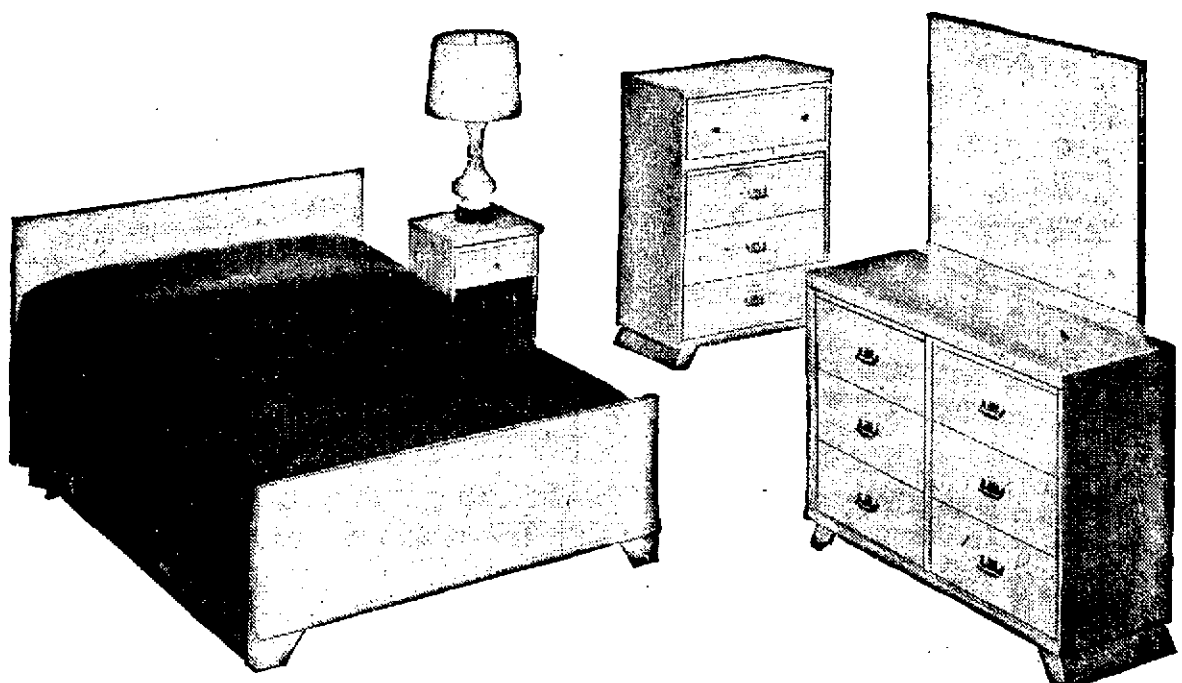

Reasons most commonly given are that labor costs have gone up and that larger retail markups are being granted. Many lines are being expanded and feature new blends of synthetics, so that price comparisons are relative.

Don't fret too much. However, about the encroachment of the male knee upon the summer scene. You can even forget the coming higher prices, maybe, if you'll just remember this:

National Sweater Week will be upon us next Monday. The National Knitted Outerwear Assn. will proclaim a "Sweater Girl for 1953."

And the attention of the nation can leave the male knee.

Marion County Woman Heads Pythian Sisters

A Marion County woman, Mrs. Maurice Heller of near Morral, will be installed to the state's highest Pythian Sisters office in ceremonies in the Cleveland Hotel at Cleveland Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Heller, a member of Morral Temple No. 429 and past chief of the temple, will succeed Mrs. Floyd Taylor of Swanton. The temple degree staff of 30 women from Morral will install the state officers and a large number of Knights from the Morral Lodge will also go to Cleveland.

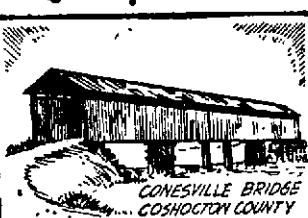

The ceremonies will climax the annual four-day convention of Ohio Knights of Pythias and Pythian Sisters. Sisters and Knights from Morral will leave for Cleveland Wednesday morning. The convention opens that night with church services in the hotel ballroom. Approximately 800 women and 400 men will attend the convention.

Mrs. Heller's name was submitted as a candidate for a state office at the convention in Columbus five years ago and she was elected grand outer guard. Grand senior now, she worked her way through the offices of grand protector, grand manager, and grand junior.

She has been a member of the Morral temple 17 years. Shortly after joining the temple, she began working her way through the chairs there. Seven years later, she was past chief after holding the offices of guard, protector, manager, junior, senior, and most excellent chief.

Active in Pythian Sister work, she is a past president of the Child Conservation League, a captain on the degree staff of Rebekah Lodge of Morral and also active in school activities at Morral. She is a member of the school PTA, Band parents group,

Her husband runs a 360-acre farm south of Morral. He is a member and past chancellor of the Morral Knights of Pythias Lodge and will be attending the convention. Both natives of Marion County, Mr. and Mrs. Heller have two sons, Maurice Ralph and Gary Grant. Maurice, 15, is a sophomore in Morral High School and Gary, 11, is a sixth grader. Mrs. Heller is the former Marietta Grant.

Registration and a joint session of Knights and Sisters opens the convention Thursday afternoon. Sisters will greet the Knights and the greeting will be returned by the Knights. Mayor Thomas Burke will greet the convention. The Knights and Sisters will hold separate business sessions Friday and Saturday. Installation of officers will be held Saturday at 3:30 p.m.

Members of 262 temples in Ohio will be attending the convention as delegates. Approximately 18,000 women are members of Pythian Sisters temples in Ohio.

Aged Woman Recluse Found To Be Wealthy

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP)—Stocks and bonds worth $240,000 were found yesterday in the refuse-strewn home of an aged woman recluse about whom an Evanston legend had grown.

Mrs. Therese Stoddy Porter, 80, died Saturday in a friend's home where she was taken after becoming ill two weeks ago. State officials found the treasure today, plus $67,000 cash in a safe deposit box.

This was the principal legend that revolved around Mrs. Porter, her large and silent house and a 1922 automobile which had stood for years in her driveway.

Many years ago, the story went, a couple—presumably the Porters—climbed into the new 1922 car to start their honeymoon trip. The husband went back into the house for a last look around and fell downstairs, killing himself. In grief his bride left the grounds and car untended throughout the years, while she remained a recluse.

She never told why she became a recluse.

Paul Waner was the only major leaguer to have batted out 3,000 or more hits during the past 25 years. He garnered 3,152 hits from 1926 through 1945.

Unions Decide To Stop Signing No Strike Pacts

ST. LOUIS (AP)—An AFL leader said Monday the metal trades unions have decided to stop entering over-all no-strike agreements at atomic energy plants.

James A. Brownlow, president of the Metal Trades Department of the AFL, charged some private companies appear to be operating atomic energy plants for the benefit of themselves instead of the government. He termed this "a menace to the government."

Brownlow reported on the change in policy in his annual report prepared for the opening of a three-day convention of the department. The session was one of several being held here in advance of the AFL convention opening here next Monday.

Detroit Studies Sales of "Continental" Studebaker

DETROIT—Studebaker, which was a big factor in setting early-postwar auto styles, may now be setting the pattern for the next few years.

Its 1946 model, designed with lavish use of glass by Raymond Loewy, was the first completely redesigned postwar car. The South Bend, Ind., concern made no further major change until its current 1953's; with these it introduced low, rakish "Continental" styling. Also designed by Loewy, the new model cost $27 million to introduce, double the 1946 cost.

A top Detroit stylist, employed by a rival manufacturer, says that the current Studebaker will affect the future looks of more competitive makes than the industry would like to admit. Most frequently, he

During the meeting it was announced that Mrs. J. F. Neidhart has taken out a WSCS life membership.

Announcement was made by Mrs. John Wesley concerning the October meeting which will emphasize supply work. Speakers from Kentucky will be present, and the supply work money will go to missions there. Program outlines for the year will be distributed at that time. Mrs. Virgil Curren listed books available on missionary education, and Mrs. Lavern Pfeiffer announced a bake sale for Saturday, this week, at the Montgomery Ward store. Members were asked to save coupons on Queen Bess silverware to resupply the church dining room.

Wesleyan Service Guild Lima

District Guild Week-End was announced for Oct. 10 and 11 at Epworth Church with the WSCS helping to entertain delegations.

Members of the Asbury Church WSCS will be guests of the Epworth society Oct. 8, and the Epworth women will visit the Prospect Street Church WSCS preceding that, on Oct. 1, at 2 p.m. There will be a zone meeting on Sept. 30 at LaRue.

It was decided to have a "birth-day clauder" for the church, with money from the project to be used toward a new table for the dining room. Mrs. Jack Danner asked members to furnish rags to be made into rugs for the church bazaar to be in the hands of those in charge by Oct. 15, and that orders are being taken by Mrs. Melba Walker for dolls.

Seventeen-year-old John Golter, who received a record number of 281 blood transfusions during an 11-month stay at a Boston hospital, smiles as he prepares to leave for his Portsmouth, N. H., home. Golter, injured in a motorcycle accident last October, is a hemophiliac—a person whose blood will not clot—doctors explained. Even the smallest cut may cause such a person to bleed to death, doctors stated, yet Golter survived a leg amputation and just about every possible complication. He is the second known "bleeder" in medical history to survive an amputation.

Bulgarians Empty Concentration Camps

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP)—Communist Bulgaria reportedly has freed an estimated 25,000 prisoners in a wholesale emptying of its concentration camps. The move apparently did not affect regular prisons where another 75,000 persons are believed held.

Usually reliable sources who reported the release yesterday said none of the camp prisoners had ever been tried or convicted in court. The releases were said to have begun Aug. 1.

Labor Policies Imperil Individual Freedom

Labor-union bosses have a serious decision ahead of them. Are they going to try to "make something" out of the resignation of Martin Durkin as secretary of labor?

Will the radicals and so-called "liberals" in the Democratic party try to exploit the episode as their peppy remarks last week indicated?

Or will the labor-union strategists strive in a conciliatory spirit to get some of their amendments to the Taft-Hartley Act through Congress with a minimum of bitter feeling all around?

The decision is important because the labor-union bosses cannot defend persuasively in a major debate today several of the amendments they seek.

Such a debate would be educational. It would reveal to the American people what so few citizens know—namely, that the greatest loss of individual liberty suffered in the last 20 years in the American republic has resulted from the political influence and authoritarian policies of big unions.

One wonders when there will be revival of true liberalism in America so that an individual may recover his right to work and his freedom to negotiate employment and wages for himself.

He was deprived of these civil liberties under the Wagner Act and it unfortunately continues to be the case under the Taft-Hartley Act.

When, as is sanctioned by the present law, a citizen is not allowed to retain his job unless he joins a union—even though he may have conscientious objections to such membership—the loss of liberty is far greater than could possibly be involved when a Congressional committee asks a witness whether he is a Communist.

Yet in the hue and cry which emanates from certain pulpits, forums, and from meetings like that of the American Political Science Assn. where alleged dangers to freedom are stressed, nothing is said about the concrete loss of civil rights to the worker already experienced under existing law or about the civil rights certain to be lost if some of the amendments being demanded by the big labor unions are enacted.

Not all the proposed amendments which Mr. Durkin tried to get accepted by the White House are restrictive of individual liberty as there are some of relatively little consequence included that are supposed to benefit employers.

The important restrictions on the rights of individuals which the labor unions want can be stated as follows:

1. Management in certain industries—maritime, construction and amusement—would be deprived of the right to hire whom they pleased. Employees would be furnished by a union monopoly to which the worker and the public generally would pay tribute.

To allow prebidding agreements in certain industries and break down the principle of freedom of hiring is to sanction its breakdown eventually in all industries.

2. Unions would have the right hereafter—whenever compulsory membership for the minority of individuals has been voted by a majority—to expel anybody from membership for items far beyond the mere nonpayment of dues.

This could include by subterfuge any criticism of their own officers at labor-union meetings. Employers would have to discharge such employees at the simple behest of the unions or become involved in legal controversy.

3. Supervisors who in the main have represented management heretofore are to be required to join unions.

This would deprive management of any means of having their instructions at the workbench carried out loyally without putting the supervisor at odds with his own union and subjecting him to risk of expulsion from the union and thus in most instances automatically losing his job.

4. Compulsory unionization as a principle would be made absolute by federal law.

This would render invalid hereafter those provisions of state laws or state constitutions which in eleven states now forbid various forms of the "closed shop," sometimes called the "union shop."

This proposal would go farther than the Wagner Act ever did in depriving the individual citizen of his right to refrain from joining a union.

5. Those who quit the workbench in a strike are to be permitted to vote in bargaining elections long after the strike is called, just as if they were still employees. Yet an employer who decides to quit a certain location and move his factory to another area can hardly do so under the present law if the union objects.

6. Unions are to be exempted from responsibility for acts of sabotage against the employer's property or for any acts of violence instigated by their own members. Yet employers are held legally responsible for any acts committed by any of their supervisors.

7. Unions are to have the right through a weakening of the "secondary boycott" provisions of the present law to hurt the businesses of third parties who have not been involved in the labor dispute.

8. Non-Communist oaths by union officers as provided under the present law would be eliminated.

Failure of the Truman administration to prosecute union officials who perjured themselves in false affidavits is being confused with alleged "ineffectiveness" of the affidavit provision.

This oath requirement should, of course, be applied to employers as well as unions.

These are only a few of the delicate points involved and in more the issue is brought out in the open the better it will be for the workers who have no spokesmen nowadays as against the tyrannies of autocratic control where compulsory unionization has been introduced.

Their Day

By TRUMAN TWILL

Whenever another ballplayer has a "day" in his honor and the loot rolls in, the rest of us are entitled to a few dreams.

If we, too, were of heroic proportions in a world of mediocrities, there would be a day for us sometime, instead of that grimly symbolic little ceremony in which a spokesman for management hands the old timer a watch to keep track of the ticking away of his retirement years.

That is as much as most of us ever can expect. But if we had been born with the right reflexes and a pair of good hands backed up by a flair for baseball know-how, it would be different.

The least we'd expect in that event would be a set of matched luggage suitable for traveling to places most people never heard of.

The most we'd expect would be half a dozen year's income, with a truckful of assorted loot, including the truck.

No ballplayer worth having a day for at all, however, expects to settle for less than a doled-up model of a 200-horsepower dreamboat in this era.

Now what makes ballplayers so much easier to idolize than the rest of us? What do they have except a place in the public eye that the rest of us don't have? That and a talent for playing a game with a ball.

They work only six months a year. They knock off if it rains. They get a bonus if they win the pennant. And if they manage to stay up there in the big leagues, they get into the hall of fame eventually.

Their admirers shower them with bars, sides of bacon, refrigerators, washing machines, automobiles, furniture, clothing, trips on ships and planes, due bills on hotels and pleasure palaces and a bundle of the indispensable green, besides their salaries and whatever they have going for them on the side.

All because they have a place in the public eye and a crew of idolatrous citizens can be persuaded to beat the bushes in their behalf when it's time to shower down with a little extra.

It goes to prove there's no substitute for a place in the public eye. A president of the United States also picks up a lot of loot.

The rest of us must put it on the line. Nothing's free. If we happen to be baseball fans we even may be called on to dole in for a share of a ballplayer's well-earned recognition as a public hero.

When we finally are over the hill, we just fade away. They don't even ask us to become directors of banks and corporations, like old soldiers.

We just fade . . . away.

Let the thought of self pass in, and the beauty of a great action is gone like the bloom from a soiled flower.—James A. Froude

Administration, Labor Can Find Harmony

By Martin S. Hayden

WASHINGTON—Resignation of Martin Durkin from the secretaryship of labor clearly marks the failure of a naive notion of President Eisenhower that he could achieve a basis of political toleration if not complete harmony between his administration and the American Federation of Labor.

But it does not follow necessarily that this Cabinet loss has either made Eisenhower's prospect of getting along with organized labor generally worse than if Durkin never had been chosen or hurt the over-all Republican election outlook.

The minority of labor unionists who voted for Eisenhower last year, despite overwhelming opposition to him among their leaders, probably will stay put in any case.

The new evidence from the Durkin resignation that the Republican President is standing for all essentials of the Taft-Hartley law, even if this loses him union support should strengthen his hold on more conservative voting elements.

Mr. Eisenhower's idea that he could win over the AFL was premised mainly on talks with George Meany, who advanced from secretary-treasurer to president of the AFL only three weeks after the 1952 presidential election.

Meany, who visited Eisenhower in Paris late in 1951 and came home with an "I like Ike" declaration to his close friends, was among the first men called in when the newly elected President began picking his Cabinet last November.

There is scarcely any doubt that Meany himself was offered the labor secretaryship first. When he turned to Durkin the President-elect selected a distinct Meany prototype.

Both born in 1894, Meany and Durkin started as journeymen plumbers and rose to be business agents of their union locals—Meany in New York and Durkin in Chicago.

When Meany became national president of the plumbers he brought in Durkin as secretary-treasurer. When Meany moved to secretaryship of the AFL, Durkin followed him in the plumber presidency.

In the early stages of Taft-Hartley negotiations last spring, both Meany and Durkin expressed strong confidence that amendments satisfactory to them could be agreed upon and got through the Republican Congress.

There were signs later that these union men were very close to agreement with Sen. Taft concerning Taft-Hartley amendments, despite the latter's initial characterization of the Durkin appointment as "incredible."

Certainly, Sen. Taft's removal from the negotiation was among the main reasons why President Eisenhower declined to approve and submit to Congress a list of 19 Taft-Hartley amendments tentatively agreed to last month between Durkin and White House assistant Bernard M. Shanley.

When Mr. Eisenhower consulted his congressional leaders he was told flatly that submission of these amendments would invite certain defeat and this especially in view of Taft's death.

Despite Durkin's declaration of intention to resign unless the proposed amendments were approved by the President and recommended to Congress, Eisenhower refused. It was his firmly fixed policy, he said, never to press for legislation which it was clearly apparent Congress would reject.

Had Sen. Taft, continued in normal health he would have been a top figure in Taft-Hartley negotiation at all stages. No list of amendments would have been sanctioned in any wise by the White House without Taft's advance approval.

Any program for amelioration of the labor-relations act accepted by Taft surely would have been adopted by Congress as now constituted.

An important factor, as affecting public opinion within and without the ranks of organized labor, may be the marked lessening of serious strikes and attendant use of the Taft-Hartley law.

Not once has President Eisenhower invoked the emergency provision of the act by asking court injunction of a strike; nor has the President or any of his subordinates intervened in a strike situation in any other way.

During seven months, January to July inclusive, there were 3,625 strikes this year as compared with 3,627 in the same period of 1950. But, as shown by comparison of man-hours lost, strike settlements were achieved much quicker under the Eisenhower government—hands-off policy than when President Truman was sitting up nights trying to force agreement, as in last year's steel strike.

In the seven months ending with July this year 18,600,000 man-hours were lost on account of strikes, compared with 58,200,000 in the like period of 1952.

This testimonial to the rightness of Eisenhower's attitude is his more marked because one of his first official acts was complete abolishment of wartime wage and salary controls.

No fewer than 11,000 union applications for wage increases were pending before the Wage Stabilization Board at that time, and the displaced Truman officials prophesied an unparalleled avalanche of strikes due to removal of government controls.

She Helps Refugees

WASHINGTON

Pretty Renee Marie Hausenstein is a natural for her job in the Office of Refugees and Immigration. She knows the problems well for she herself came to this country as a refugee in 1940.

Renee Marie, who became a U. S. citizen in May 1952, is special assistant to Mrs. Dorothy D. Houghton, assistant director of the office, which directs all matters relating to refugees and uprooted people, such as the U. S. Escapee Program, which supplies supplemental care and resettlement opportunities for people from behind the Iron Curtain now in Western Europe and The Middle and Far East.

Some 214,000 refugees are to be admitted in the next three years.

Miss Hausenstein, daughter of a Bavarian art historian and a Belgian Jewish mother, escaped from the Nazis in the early days of World War II. She went to Brazil.

"I studied Portuguese, and after a while I got my first job teaching this language privately, as well as French, English and German and did very well," the gentle and lovely brunette told me. "But in Latin countries it is hard for a single girl to have a career. Through friends I was able to get a visa as a U. S. immigrant."

Before coming to Washington Miss Hausenstein had a variety of jobs. She worked as a secretary in Wall Street, as secretary, receptionist and hostess at the United Nations Club in Washington, and with the National Catholic Welfare Conference in New York, meeting all boats bringing in refugees from Europe under the DP Act, and helping in resettlement posts in Boston, New York and New Orleans.

"When I heard of the creation of the Office of Refugees and Immigration, I knew that was where I could do my best," she says.

Renee Marie says she tries to be Mrs. Houghton's "eyes and ears," act as translator and interpreter, analyzes reports and letters and digests newspapers.

"I'm in my office nearly every night until after 10 o'clock, trying to read and study everything I can," Renee Marie said. "It's one thing being a refugee, but knowing about the 40 million other refugees and uprooted people around the world, and wondering what's to become of them, is another."

The LaRue Wood-Bending Works was established by C. Bechtold in 1868 and two years later new buildings were erected at a cost of $6,000. He employed five men and manufactured shafts, fellows, buggy bows, buggy poles and other kind of bent work. His goods found ready sale in many cities in the East and some of it was shipped to Europe. His annual sales amounted to $10,000.

The Once Over

The last refuge of man in his fight with inflation has been destroyed. We mean the price of a world - series baseball ticket.

More for every seat will be charged, with the most loyal supporter of baseball through the years, the bleacher fan, required to cough up twice as much. This can put the Democrats back in power.

The last hope of the Ultimate Consumer was that he might continue to forget his troubles in a baseball park at the old rates. But he must now take his beating just the same as nonbaseball fans.

The magnates are only millionaires and must be protected against loss of morale in the upper brackets.

Everything it seems is more expensive, even a batting rally, an afternoon in shirtsleeves, the right to yell "Take the bum out!" and a Bronx cheer for umpires in the cool of October.

It is all a matter of supply and demand. The supply of open air, October afternoons and struggles to get to the series by bus and subway, etc. has decreased and the demand is greater than ever.

It costs twice as much to create pre-series suspense as it did five years ago. The cost of baseball has gone up due to our foreign-aid program under which we are compelled to lend so many baseballs to Europe and Asia.

This spring there was a serious blight on baseball bats, due to a fungus of some kind and good bats are hard to get. Much of the material used for first, second and third bases is now taken for defense purposes.

There is a serious shortage of home plates, foul-lines, beer slogans and other things that go to make up the complete baseball game, the baseball economic experts tell us.

There was a time when the baseball fan was thought to have been such a loyal guy all season through the dull games that he was entitled to see the series without federal aid.

But now baseball operates like any other business. We understand it is on the verge of ruin, can be saved only by a new economic program and that the government may have to be called in.

The idea of a house - to - house canvass to keep the Toppings solvent has been ruled out and there is evidently no chance of a nation wide charity drive to keep the wolf from the Ebbetts' heirs and successors.

A settlement apparently has been reached by Aly Khan and Rita Hayworth, the lawyers for both sides having waded up to their necks through the money and reached the shore safely . . . Rita gets, among other things, custody of the child and three oil paintings, a Enoir, a Picasso and a Toulouse-Lautrec . . . We hear Aly can visit the paintings once every year . . . He retains the racing stables, the Riviera reservations and the Agha Khan's phone number.

Allen County Asks $60,000 Be Returned

Prosecutor Files Suit Seeking Funds Paid Conservancy District

DEFIANCE, Ohio — County Prosecutor Anthony J. Bowers has filed suit for recovery of some $60,000 paid by Allen County to the Maumee Watershed Conservancy District in 1952 and 1953.

Outcome of the suit will affect 15 northwest Ohio counties in the district.

Allen County contended that, according to a recent Supreme Court ruling, the district had no right to collect levies for financing operations without county approval. Bowers asked recovery of the levies and retention of funds collected by the county but not yet turned over to the district.

The Supreme Court ruling in question held the Scioto-Sandusky Conservancy District's levies were in reality taxes and therefore county approval was necessary.

Scioto-Sandusky officials said that ruling forced delay in numerous district projects. The effect could be the same in the Maumee district.

The 15-judge Maumee Conservancy Court was scheduled to meet here yesterday but postponed its meeting until Feb. 1 pending outcome of the suit. Oct. 8 was set for hearing date on Allen County's request for an injunction to prevent further district expenditures.

Old Gas Buggies Must Start Out Before Sunrise To Keep Pace

CLEVELAND — The Glidden Tour's caravan of ancient automobiles left here today on a two-day, looping 280-mile tour of Ohio, south to Columbus then back north tomorrow through Toledo to Detroit.

Before sun-up some of the older, slower cars were on the road. The later models—none of the 335 in the tour was made after 1933—will overtake the early starters along the way.

Thousands of Ohioans are expected to turn out in towns along the way to watch the caravan, which includes 22 cars made in 1905 or earlier. Most of these auto pioneers will be hauled on the highway by trailer, moving under their own power only in parades in cities. But two-thirds of the remaining cars are of vintage before 1915 and will make the trip unaided.

Along the way, Ohioans, welcoming the eighth revival of the Glidden Tour as a part of the state's sesquicentennial celebration, will have welcoming committees also costumed in pre World War I dress.

First stop will be at Wooster, day, looping 280-mile tour of Ohio, south to Columbus then back north tomorrow through Toledo to Detroit.

By supper time the caravan expects to reach the Ohio State Fairground to form for a parade to the Statehouse.

Members of the 1953 Glidden Tour—the largest in the history of the event—banqueted here last night.

Man and Wife Hurt in Crash Near Mt. Gilead

Driver Loses Control, Auto Overturns; Other Mishap Occurs Earlier

A Mt. Gilead man and his wife were injured in one of two highway accidents which occurred five minutes and about a mile apart on Route 95 Monday.

Laurel R. Proper, 64, of near Mt. Gilead, suffered an injured right shoulder and his wife, Phoebe, 58, sustained a fractured upper left arm when their car overturned in a ditch on Route 95, about three and a half miles east of Mt. Gilead at 1:30 p.m. Monday. They were taken to Morrow County Hospital at Mt. Gilead in a Craven ambulance, according to highway patrolmen from Marion who investigated.

The Proper auto went out of control on a curve, swerved off the left side of the road, where it overturned in a ditch. The vehicle was completely demolished and a wrecker was called to remove it from the scene.

About five minutes earlier, and a mile and a half west of that mishap, a tractor and semi-trailer truck outfit driven by Richard C. Thompson, 23, of Lima, went out of control on a curve and overturned in a ditch. The driver escaped injury.

The truck, loaded with brick, swerved off the right side of the roadway and overturned in a ditch. The load of brick was scattered over the road the state highway department was called to remove the bricks from the highway. Traffic was maintained, patrolmen said.

The truck outfit was heavily damaged. The axle was torn out from underneath and the body of the trailer was heavily damaged. A wrecker was called.

Raymond L. Davis, 16, of Richmond, lost control of his auto on Route 37, in Union County, near Essex, at 6:15 p.m. Monday. The auto spun around on the highway and hit a mail box owned by Ed T. Morgan of near Richmond. The mail box was demolished and the car was slightly damaged.

No Loss Reported In Two Fire Calls

No loss was reported in two fires extinguished by city firemen Monday.

Firemen from the Central station were called to the National City Bank, 107 N. Main St., at 12:25 p.m. Monday where some clothing hanging on the steam pipe of the bank caught fire as the furnace was being fired.

At 10:25 p.m. Monday, an oil heating stove at the Coby Hill residence, 143 Plymouth St., flared up and firemen from the W. Center St. and Central stations were called as a precautionary measure.

A false alarm was answered at 4:04 a.m. Monday at 7:01 p.m. Monday by the W. Center St. and Central firemen.

large enough to store the impounded cars properly.

More discussion followed in which Fralich said he feels the purpose of the ban is defeated when any cars are parked in the no parking zone. When Council passed the ordinance purpose of the ban was said to be to allow a speedier flow of traffic through the congested area on Church St. by providing an additional traffic lane. The matter was finally referred to the Municipal Service Committee to study the possibility of repeal of the ordinance, more rigid enforcement, or increase of fines for tickets issued to offenders.

In other action Council:

Approves 3 Cruisers

1. Authorized the safety-service director to advertise for bids to supply three new police cruisers to the city and to trade in three older models no longer fit for use by the police department. The ordinance was adopted unanimously as an emergency measure.

2. Authorized the transfer of $2,468.84 from the City Hospital Fund for payment of service contracts, laundry charges, and industrial insurance for employees. This was also adopted unanimously as an emergency measure.

3. Approved action of the Planning Commission in granting a permissive use permit to Daniel W. Beaman to establish a barber shop in a garage at the rear of 884 E. Center St.

4. Appropriated $100 from the general fund to pay expenses of Fire Chief Owen A. Siffritt to attend the Ohio Fire Chiefs Conference at Cleveland Oct. 7 through 9.

Hears C. of C. Letter

6. Heard read a letter from the Marion Chamber of Commerce recommending no action be taken on a proposal by Mayor Harold F. Robinson for construction of a new city hall on the city parking lot at S. Prospect and W. Church Sts. at the present time. The letter was received and filed by Council.

7. Listened to an appeal by Earl Sherer and C. W. Osmon representing the Refrigeration Service Engineers Society for some type of legislation to outlaw discarded ice boxes and refrigerators. They said several states and a number of Ohio cities have adopted such laws in an attempt to prevent suffocation of children accidentally locked inside them during play. They said they were not asking that a law be made to force junking of the ice boxes or refrigerators, only that the hinges or door locks be removed. Their request was referred to the Municipal Service Committee for further study.

8. Briefly discussed but took no action on a proposal by Mark Street station firemen to dismantle a discarded fire truck on their own time if money obtained from sale of the parts were used to purchase furnishings for fire stations.

9. Referred a proposed alley vacation ordinance to the Streets and Alleys Committee for more study.

Discuss School Plea

A lengthy discussion arose following the reading of Cathers' report on the City School Board request.

In his report Cathers said that request is for paving strips of land 20 feet wide on Mandana Ave. and 15 feet wide on Seminole Ave. These are the distances between the present paved portions of the streets and paved parking areas constructed by the school board, he explained.

In reply to doubts raised at the

Rev. H. V. Falor Named Leader By County's Ministerial Group

Rev. H. V. Falor, pastor of Oakland EUB Church in Marion, was elected president of the Marion County Ministerial Association at a meeting Monday morning at Salem EUB Church east of Marion. He replaces Rev. Evan Owens who was elected president in the spring and was transferred later from Marion to a Cincinnati pastorate by the Ohio Annual Conference of the Methodist Church.

The guest speaker was Rev. W. Henry Shillington of Columbus, executive secretary of the Ohio Council of Churches. This was the first meeting of the association for the fall, and at noon, women of the church served dinner to the guests in the church basement dining room. Rev. A. Eugene Clark was host pastor.

Election of the new president was in charge of Rev. William Kissel of Wado, vice president, pastor of the Evangelical and Reformed Churches of Waldo and Richmond Township. Rev. Norman Rinn of Fite Memorial Baptist Church is secretary-treasurer.

last Council meeting Aug. 24 that these strips are owned by the city he said the Mandana Ave. strip was dedicated to the city in 1925 and that there was an ordinance passed in 1934 according to which he believes to be Seminole Ave.

He also reported that the estimated cost of paying the two strips to be a total of $7,500.

The school board requested the strips be passed to students, faculty, and visitors using the paved parking areas on school property would not have to drive across the dirt strip.

Mayor Robinson said he felt the city was not responsible for paving the Seminole Ave. sections because there is no deed on record dedicating the street to the city.

Asked Legal Opinion

Council decided to request City Solicitor George A. Piacentino to provide answers to whether the streets are legal streets, whether the city may assess the school board for the improvements, and determine whether the school board of the city will have control over the use to be made of the improved portions of the streets.

In answer to the C. of C. letter presented the City Council, Mayor Robinson said he appreciated the Chamber's suggestions on the proposed city hall plan which included a proposal that a civic center be built at some future date — but that a new city hall is needed now and he will continue his investigations into the feasibility of constructing one on the city parking lot.

All Councilmen were present for last night's meeting with the exception of Don Quaintance. Fifth Ward invocation was given by Rev. L. Harrison Ludwig of Salem Evangelical and Reformed Church.

Eleven such traveling visits were made during 1952 by Brown, who found that the idea of giving the general public an opportunity to discuss problems with him and members of his staff as these temporary offices without having to travel to Columbus, was popular and beneficial.

corn and grain feeds, is increasing.

Furthermore, the government could save several million dollars in administrative expenses if corn allotments are not set up.

Yet, officials say, the administration would then face the possibility that a bumper crop next year would create a corn surplus if controls are not used.

In that event, the administration would be subject to the same sort of criticism its farm officials have been directing at the preceding administration.

Preliminary work has been started on possible corn allotments, but a decision on whether to use them has yet to be made.

The Bowdoin returned to port yesterday after an unsuccessful search north of Nantucket Lightship where the Oregon went down Dec. 10, 1941 after a collision with the battleship New Mexico.

Democrats

ected Eisenhower-Stevenson meeting.

Truman, who previously had voiced some free-swinging criticisms of the "wrecking crew" he said was at work in Washington, applauded Stevenson's sharp attack on Eisenhower foreign policy and beamed when the 1952 nominee praised the "undaunted courage and strong will" he said Truman had displayed in foreign affairs.

Later the former President told this reporter the Republicans can't do anything else but follow the international policies the Democrats had laid down.

"But I am worried about the way the Republicans are carrying out our policies," he said. "Of course, they have to continue the general line of foreign policy that started with Woodrow Wilson. But the confusion they have brought about in the execution of those policies has got our Allies worried about America's intentions."

Truman said, however, that in anything he has to say about the new administration he is never going to "pick on" Eisenhower personally.

"That's because I feel for him—I've been there," the former President added.

Asserting that the Democrats in Congress had "functioned with great intelligence, courage and restraint" since the Republicans took over, Stevenson told the audience at the swank fund raising dinner:

"The greatest beneficiary of the Democratic party in these past few months has been President Eisenhower. I only hope that he realizes that."

But if the Democrats were somewhat reluctant to tie off the GOP President personally, whoops and hollers from the party faithful encouraged a list of speakers to take the gloves off in criticizing Republican domestic programs.

The special accent they put on scoffing at GOP farm policies laid the groundwork for further, currying of the opposition at a panel discussion today, led by Gov. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan.

Stevenson convulsed his audience by gubbing as "government by postponement" what he called the Eisenhower administration's resort to the naming of commissions to study all the controversial problems passed up by this year's Congress.

He said that last year's GOP campaign theme that it's time for a change had brought only a change in the attitude of the Republicans toward legislation passed by Democratic Congresses.

"They now seem to be doing their very best to persuade the American people that they are not going to touch a single one of these advances of the past 20 years," he said.

He poked fun at recent claims

Manslaughter Trial Delayed

Oct. 13 Set as Date For Pickens Hearing

The trial of Willie Pickens, indicted by the Marion County grand jury Aug. 12 on two counts of manslaughter in the second degree, originally scheduled for today has been postponed to Oct. 13.

Postponement to the October date was requested when attorneys were advised that several witnesses would be unable to appear today.

Pickens, 22, of 505 Jefferson St., was the driver of one automobile involved in the fatal traffic collision July 19 on Route 30-S near Caledonia in which two men were killed.

They were H. W. Crissinger, 71, of 139 Dix Ave., and Harry Mathias, 56, of 278½ E. Church St. A third person, Harold B. Harper, 49, of 461 Davis St., died Aug. 18 from injuries sustained in the head-on crash.

Traffic Survey Reports Today

The first report of the chairmen of the Grade Crossing and Traffic Survey Committee, the group assigned to raise $12,000 to help finance a master traffic survey in Marion, will be made tonight.

The group will report on the progress being made in their effort to raise their share of the $20,000 needed to pay for the survey. Marion City Council and County Commissioners have previously agreed to appropriate $8,000 of the estimated cost of the survey.

John V. Ruth, chairman of the committee announced last week, the chairmen of the various teams soliciting funds would work at their own convenience.

Water Shortage Feared in Oberlin

OBERLIN, Ohio (U-A) — With 2,000 students due when Oberlin College opens next Tuesday, city officials are predicting a critical water shortage.

Girl Scouts yesterday distributed handbills which warned that water consumption would have to be cut beyond present bans against sprinkling, air conditioning and car washing.

A new reservoir will be completed in about a month, but the city says there is not enough water to fill its 44 million gallon capacity. Pumping already has started at the only emergency source, Camden Lake, to supplement the dwindling supply from Kipton Reservoir.

The store has been remodeled and expanded. All major television sets, appliances and radios will be handled.

NO ONE INJURED

No injuries resulted from a traffic accident investigated Monday morning by the Marion County sheriff's office.

A dump truck driven by John Dale Plumley, 16, of 111 W. Walnut St., collided with a Yellow Cab taxi driven by Richard C. Van Wey, 33, of 143 DeWolfe Ct., south of Marion on Route 23. Following the impact, the truck struck a mail box at the home of Richard J. Newell.

I see by the newspapers that Michael Borodin, once practically the ruler of the whole of South China, is dead. I knew Borodin and watched him operate from the day he arrived in Shanghai on his way to Canton in 1924.

SOKOLSKY

Although a Russian, he had been educated in the United States at Valparaiso, Indiana. He had studied law but he operated a preparatory school in Chicago. I have never been able to discover whether he ever became an American citizen, perhaps because of the many different names he used.

BORODIN WAS a theoretical Marxist, a close friend of Karl Radek and Leon Trotsky, although he never joined the Trotskyist faction of the Communist Party.

In 1924, Dr. Sun Yat-sen set off again to conquer China, but this time with Russian assistance. Michael Borodin, with approximately 100 military and civilian experts, was based on Canton to reorganize Sun's government and army.

At Whampoa, outside of Canton, they organized a military academy, at the head of which they placed Chiang Kai-shek, who was then an obscure military man attached to Sun Yat-sen. He legalized the Chinese Communist Party. Borodin's ability was beyond belief. In a short period, he had mastered the intricacies of Chinese politics and had put himself in such a commanding position that those who disagreed with him went swiftly into exile.

DR. SUN YAT-SEN was then a sick man and was to die on March 12, 1925. The leaders of the party under him were Liao Chung-kai, Hu Han-min and Wang Ching-wei. Liao was assassinated. Hu and Wang went into exile. Borodin was in command.

His choice to lead the revolution was Chiang Kai-shek. Assisted by a Russian general who in China called himself Galens, but who became Marshal Bluecher, in command of Soviet Russia's Far Eastern armies and was subsequently to be liquidated, Chiang conquered China.

Borodin operated psychological penetration organizations in advance of the march of Chiang's armies; he organized on a Russian basis in the rear of the armies. It was all done with amazing effectiveness.

Meanwhile, Chiang, deciding that Borodin was actually organizing the conquest of China by Russia, determined to break with Borodin, who controlled most of the army and the vast Kuomintang political party which had been penetrated by Chinese Communists.

SO CHIANG came to Shanghai alone, a refugee, to see what he could do to win China away from Borodin. Chiang could have stayed with the Russians and he could have had their full support. By breaking with them, he risked civil war and his own total elimination. When Chiang managed to establish the Nanking government, he issued orders for the expulsion of the Russians, including Borodin and his wife.

Meanwhile, Stalin, emerging as undisputed master of Russia, disapproved of the slowness of Borodin's pace in converting China into a satellite; further, Stalin disliked Radek, who was Borodin's friend. Radek was ultimately liquidated.

So, in 1927, Borodin and his wife, Galens and the other advisers, including some Americans working for the Russians, left China.

Chiang controlled the Nationalist government, but part of the army stayed Communist under Chu Teh. It is that army which the Russians have owned and controlled since 1925 and which fought the United States in Korea.

TO GET the kind of technical advice which the Russians had been providing but without the political complications that Borodin brought with him, Chiang turned to Germany, to the veteran organizations.

First came the famous Colonel Max Bauer, who had been Ludendorff's Chief-of-Staff, but before he could do much, he died of smallpox. Then came General Alexander von Falkenhausen, who reorganized Chiang's armies. I recently saw an interview between Falkenhausen and Karl von Wiegand, a great American reporter, in which the general spoke of China in these terms: "That key was once firmly in the hands of America. Not understanding its geopolitical importance or realizing its military and economic potentialities, United States diplomacy and statesmanship let Communist Soviet Russia have that vital key to Asia with an indifference that must have been born in incredible ignorance of history, past and foreseeable.

To return to Borodin: when he got back to Russia, he disappeared for a while; then his name showed in obscure positions. I think that

Columbus Paper Aids Couple To Be Married in France

COLUMBUS, Ohio — A story which appeared in a Columbus newspaper this morning will enable a 24-year-old couple to marry on the other side of the world.

Bernard McCabe, a Columbus-born machinist now living in Dunkerque, France, wrote Columbus Mayor Robert T. Oestreicher that French tradition poses a problem for him and his fiancée, Alberta Gibon.

He said the mayor of Dunkerque told him they could not be married unless notice of the engagement were carried in the home town newspapers of both the prospective bride and groom. That's the custom in France, the mayor explained.

In today's paper, the Ohio State Journal takes care of the details. A copy of the story will be sent to Dunkerque.

McCabe made sure of a fast response. He enclosed two 15-cent airmail stamps in his letter to the Columbus mayor.

Inside Labor

Here is a blow-by-blow report of the feuding inside the private offices of the White House advisers to President Eisenhower which was climaxed by

RIESEL

Martin Durkin's abdication and which may cost the control of Congress in '54 and the presidential election of 1956.

To insiders it proves that the men who told President Eisenhower early this year that he did not know enough about the American scene to fill his civilian staff as expertly as he did his military echelons, themselves were and are rank political amateurs. These people actually isolated the president—and he has had to un-snafu each crisis personally, with assists from Vice President Nixon.

THAT'S WHAT Ike tried to do in the Durkin case—which is being flashed across the world as an American crackdown on labor. That propaganda line will hurt us. Ike knew this would happen.

So on Thursday morning, after he flew in for the late Justice Vinson's funeral, he called in his Secretary of Labor, Martin Durkin, along with two White House labor specialists. These four men spoke in the private presidential office.

For a half hour the President and Durkin argued toughly and calmly—but there was no friendship there. President Eisenhower put it right on the line. He told Durkin that he believed that there should not be a price on the labor secretary's staying in the Cabinet.

Ike said that Durkin should not put the demand on the AFL ahead of the demands of the Cabinet. The President firmly added that the AFL's demand that Durkin come to next week's AFL convention with a White House guarantee of whole-some amendment of the Taft-Hartley law was overshadowing Durkin's duty to the White House.

Then Mr. Eisenhower hit hard. He said that Durkin's duty as a citizen and the honor of being a Cabinet member should not be subordinated to his membership in the AFL and there should be no implication of "delivery" to the AFL.

DURKIN WAS respectful, but equally firm. He said that he believed that he had a White House promise that he could deliver to the AFL the kind of labor program it wanted.

Fact is, Durkin did have that promise. But that was before the full implication of the proposed labor program was explained to the President by Vice President Nixon. Point is that Ike had called in Secretary of Commerce Weeks and Durkin and said they knew what he wanted, work it out. They did. The first program was then sent to the AFL council meeting in Chicago in August. The council rejected it.

Durkin then returned to Washington and fought for a new program—out of which came the famous 19 points. This new program, written, it now can be revealed, by a veteran New Dealer in the labor department, named Charley Donahue, was strongly pro-labor.

It repeated Taft-Hartley in effect. And Durkin has been saying that the late Sen. Taft agreed to the new proposals before he died. However, the program was leaked to newsmen before Durkin could get Eisenhower to release it officially.

Then Nixon stopped and junked it. For two weeks Durkin worked hard to get Eisenhower to veto Nixon's veto. On Aug. 28, Durkin got word that Ike would back Nixon. Then came the face-to-face discussion last Thursday. And then Durkin resigned.

THE VICE PRESIDENT now appears as the mainspring of power in the Cabinet meetings. His ability to maneuver and the confidence that Ike shows in the young Veep shows through most clearly as a result of l'affaire Durkin. Here's how this developed.

The group around Sherman Adams, assistant president, believed that the AFL could be won over and split politically from the CIO. This made Adams' clique the left wing of the men around Ike.

It was the group which got Eisenhower shortly after election last year to call in AFL President Meany and tell him that the administration wanted to work with the AFL and let bygones be bygones.

By Victor Riesel

This group backed Durkin throughout the long behind-the-scenes fight. At one point it virtually told Secretary of Commerce Weeks to shut up and mind his own business—which was not labor, they said.

Weeks then pulled some good old-fashioned labor strategy on the pro-labor bloc in the White House. The commerce secretary "fractioned." He met quietly with a few of the other Cabinet members, briefing them regularly on the fight.

These were Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey, Postmaster General Summerfield, Secretary of Defense Wilson and Secretary of Agriculture Benson. Working with Weeks on every move was the Vice President.

THEY GOT TO Eisenhower. He indicated that he had not been aware of all the maneuvering—or that the program virtually repealed the Taft-Hartley law.

Ike then suffered from the inept tactics of his advisers on labor. Had he appointed a man like John Steelman or Cy Chang as labor secretary he would have built a political bridge to labor itself. But at no time did he actually have a neutral who knew all of the intricacies of labor politics. Durkin was on a spot. His basic livelihood and career depended on getting back to the presidency of the Plumbers Union before too long.

The man who succeeded Durkin as temporary head of the Plumbers International is popular with the men. In a few years he could solidify himself. Already, Durkin's opponents have been charging in labor circles that the ex-Secretary of Labor has worked with "Big Business." So Durkin has been anxious to get back to his union.

Thus Ike, instead of slowly winning over the AFL, may be blasted at the AFL convention unless Dick Nixon can head it off by working with the pro-GOP Teamsters Union. A running attack on Eisenhower in AFL circles would have great effect on the coming national elections.

So Ike again is being urged to revamp his White House staff to avoid future political explosions.

Hazardous Occupation By Inez Robb

The most hazardous occupation in the world today is parenthood. Or so it seems to this innocent bystander.

INEZ ROBB

Moppets encouraged at all age levels to express their individuality, are eternally irritating. Lizzy Borden I seldom pick up a newspaper that some impatient and critical tot has not dispatched a parent with four whacks of an ax.

THIS SORT of thing is what gives juvenile delinquency a bad name, at least among parents.

So it may console the grown-ups somewhat to learn that "most children like their mothers and fathers but with certain definite reservations."

This semi-demi-blanket endorsement of parents reaches me through the Youth Research Institute. With Doc Kinsey keening after the old folks, there is no reason that a Mr. Lester Rand, president and director of the institute, shouldn't cross-question the kids.

Mr. Rand, interested in "the tastes, attitudes and opinions of young people," has conducted a coast-to-coast survey on what boys and girls from 5 to 12 years of age think of their parents' efforts to rear them in a way that will keep them out of the pokey.

IT OCCURS to me that the conclusions reached by this survey are not apt to ground-loop anyone from sheer surprise. As I case the polls, kids think they are smarter than their parents and are impatient of discipline.

If I remember correctly, this was the general complaint in my mob when I was in the 5-to-12 age bracket.

I felt the grown-ups were nice and well-meaning but scarcely bright enough to cross the street by themselves with the traffic lights in their favor.

My parents had not had the benefit of a progressive education and it never occurred to either that you had to give an infant a logical argument as to why he shouldn't throw the cereal on the floor. They just gave him the back of the hand or the hair brush.

APPARENTLY, even today there are a substantial number of parents who cling to this old-fashioned theory, because 88 per cent of the kids polled beefed that parents are too arbitrary.

Eighty-three per cent bleated that their parents "just gave orders with no reason," like Mama and Papa used to do.

Mr. Rand obviously leans to the progressive method, but he says "parents would find the going easier in raising their children if they learn to give simple, understandable explanations when asking them to do something."

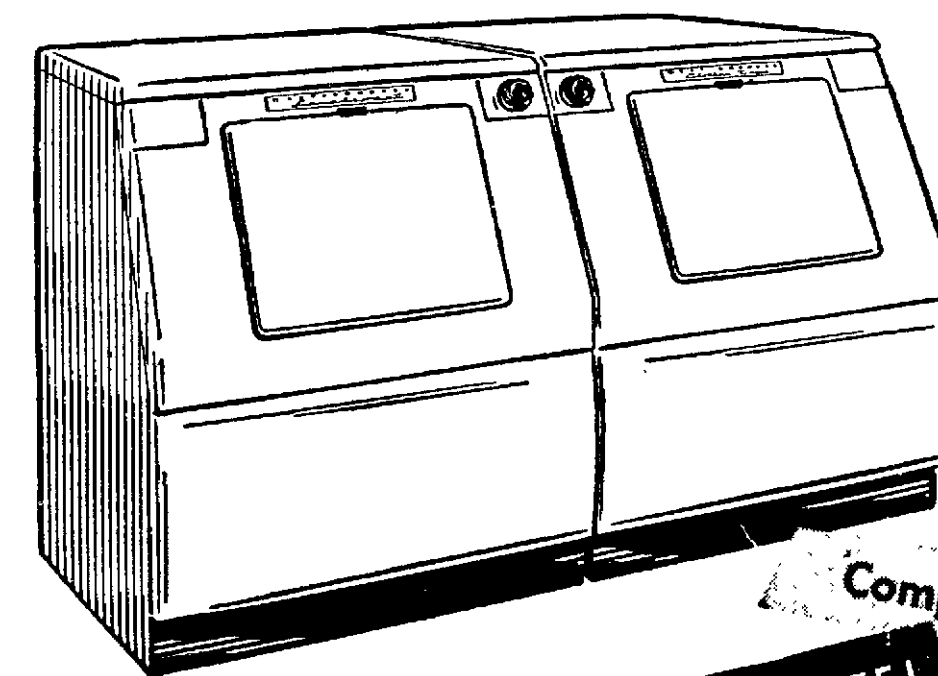

Parenthood gets harder and more hazardous by the minute. The tiny tykes in this poll are fed up with parents who can't answer even simple questions about such common phenomena as "rocket ships, space travel and life on other planets."

"IT MIGHT BE a good idea if parents kept up with the times or took a course in mechanics, electronics or aeronautical engineering." Mr. Rand suggests, thereby setting parenthood back a good 50 years. What are all those comic books for, a good many indignant parents are probably asking by this time.

I know this dates me, but truth will out. The modern child dreads no punishment more than being deprived of television viewing privileges. This survey shows.

Land sakes! When I got too rambunctious, Mama put me to bed. And usually I was glad to lie face down!

300,000 Letters Aid Kentucky Boy, 11, Win Fight for Life

MADISONVILLE, Ky. (AP)—An 11-year-old boy is in school for the first time in his life because "too many people love me for me to die."

And little Odell Leon Hall has about 300,000 pieces of mail to prove his theory.

A little more than a year ago—in July, 1952—when it was feared the youngster was near death from several ailments, including hardening of the arteries and heart disease, he sent out this plea:

"Won't somebody please write me?"

His request, picked up from the Associated Press, brought letters of encouragement and gifts from all parts of the world.

After that, says his mother Mrs. C. R. Hall of Nortonville, Odell began to show gradual improvement and to walk again with the aid of a cane.

Last week, he hobbled into White Plains School, eager to learn to read so he can preach someday.

"I'm going to work for the lord," he says.

Ohio Plowing Champion Heads for National Finals

Robert Imbody, LaRue Farmer, Lays State Title on Line

Robert Imbody, 22, of LaRue, state level land plowing champion is busy preparing for the journey to Wisconsin where he will compete in the national contest.

Imbody, who won the state plowing title last Wednesday in Fayette County near Washington C.H., was busy over the week end making last minute adjustments to the plow he will take to Eau Claire County, Wis. to use in the contest.

The champion took the top spot in Ohio in his first attempt at a state crown. He was penalized five points for finishing 25 minutes after the deadline, but still managed to come off with the highest point total.

Imbody finished with 805 points, three and one-half better than runner-up Raymond Poos of Eaton in Preble County. He was 15 points higher than the winner for the last two years, Lawrence Goettemoeller of St. Henry in Mercer County.

The LaRue victor will pack his family and his winning plow into the family car for the trip to Wisconsin. He plans to leave Wednesday morning and expects the trip to take him two days.

A firm in Milwaukee has promised to supply Imbody with a tractor for which to compete in the contest. He feels it would be too much of a task to try to transport his own tractor to the site of the matches. He will, however, use his own plow.

Making the trip with Imbody will be his wife and two children, Robert Jr., two, and Sharol, who will be one-year-old Sept. 22.

They will be joined in Wisconsin by the Ohio contour plowing champion, R. C. Cummins of near Lewistown. The national trials will be held on a farm near Augusta in Eau Claire County.

Calvary Church Groups Attend Joint Meeting

A joint meeting of the Calvary EUB Church WWS and Christian Service Guild Thursday night was attended by 70 members and guests at the Parish House. Included on the program were music and a talk by a former WWS member, Miss Gertrude Click, who told of her work at the Third Street Mission in Columbus. Mrs. James Smith was in charge for the program hour.

Mrs. J. W. Baker played a group of familiar hymns, followed by group singing of "The Church's One Foundation." Devotions were by Mrs. Fred Dutt, and Miss Doris Brading presented opening chapter of the new study book, "Where're the Sun." A trio composed of Misses Marjorie Epley, Ruth Zachman and Viola Stull sang the missionary hymn of the same name. Following the talk by Miss Click, Mrs. John Ruth offered prayer.

Announcement was made concerning the next meeting of the WWS which will be a rally meeting. An institute of the WWS and Christian Service Guild will be held at the church Sept. 23.

Tuning Up for '54
Democrats Flex Political Muscles at Chicago Rally

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (U)—The Democrats' agility in lambasting the Republican administration while side-stepping criticism of President Eisenhower himself was the only unusual thing about their first day's meeting in Chicago.

They are using Chicago like a gymnasium: To flex their political muscles and start training for the next big contest with the Republicans, the congressional elections of 1954.

What they had to say about the Republicans, while perhaps distinguished for its fervor and unanimity, was hardly more than the Republicans had had to say about them for the 20 years leading up to the 1952 elections.

For more of the time since last year's elections the Democrats, considering what they had been called for two decades, were extraordinarily restrained in criticism of the Republicans.

This was a situation which made many wonder not so much about the restraint itself but how long it would last. It began to melt in earnest as Congress finished its first session under the Republicans in August.

The Democrats claimed to be rescuers of Eisenhower from disaster at the hands of his own Republicans on some of his most important programs. It was not until Labor Day that the Democrats as a party began to get back into the natural political groove.

On that day former President Truman opened up in Detroit, after months of silence, with a "give 'em hell" speech. That was the biggest leak, up to then, in the good ship harmony.

The ship sank yesterday in Chicago when speaker after speaker, but particularly Truman, Adlai Stevenson and Sen. Douglas of Illinois, set the pattern for what can be expected from now until election day in November 1954.

But the absence of direct criticism of Eisenhower was so obvious that Stephen A. Mitchell, Democratic National Committee chairman, was asked about it on an MBS Radio program last night.

Mitchell said, "I don't think there ever was any disposition to go after Eisenhower personally. I certainly hope we never will be guilty of the personal attacks like those that were made on Truman and Roosevelt."

It is difficult to believe Mitchell's hope will not be dashed by at least some of the Democrats running for office in 1954 if they think an attack on Eisenhower will do them any good.

In fact, Eisenhower's safety from personal attack in the coming political year may be in direct proportion to his popularity with the public, or his loss of it. Attacking a popular hero might not be bright politically.

Mitchell showed he was not unaware that Eisenhower's popularity may be the guiding factor in how the Democrats treat him. He said on the same radio program he believes Eisenhower's popularity is waning.

This may be only wishful thinking on Mitchell's part. He expressed it as a thought, not as a fact. It may not be a fact at all. Because it may not be a fact, the Democrats at Chicago may have felt that until they see more evidence of it they'd better make a detour around the President.

But, since the Democrats have started slamming the Republicans, and since in politics one word leads to another, there's no telling now when Eisenhower may become a Democratic target.

And once Eisenhower himself becomes a target then will begin one of the most interesting chapters in his fabulous career: How will he stand up under direct personal criticism and how will he react to it?

He had to take some in last year's campaign, but so far in his military career and in his first eight months in office he has been spared almost wholly the brickbats which have been the common lot of any inhabitant of the White House.

It was not only his immense prestige as a national hero which saved him from barbed thrusts. Through his own policy of avoiding any name calling or personal recriminations, he has put would-be critics in the defensive position of looking outrageous if they slugged him who hadn't slugged them.

But this year is an off-year in politics, with the next election a year away. When the political thermometer starts to climb, coats come off. So do the kid gloves.

The National Association of Home Builders says the 2,000,000 veterans of the Korean war represent a vast housing market. Only 20,000 Korean veterans so far have exercised their GI home loan privileges.

Mayor of New York in Bitter Primary Fight

Impellitteri Faces Challenge Today from Son of Late Senator

NEW YORK — New York City's Democratic voters will give their decision today in their party's bitterest mayoral primary contest in 16 years—a contest with national implications.

The Democratic battle pits Mayor Vincent R. Impellitteri, seeking reelection and backed by the party's so-called conservative faction, against Manhattan Borough President Robert F. Wagner Jr., supported by the so-called liberal or New Deal wing.

Republican and Liberal party mayoral candidates are unopposed in the primary to choose candidates for city and borough offices. Half-million to Turn Out

An estimated half million to a record million persons are expected to vote in the Democratic primary, in which 2,135,000 enrolled Democrats are eligible to participate.

The latest Weather Bureau forecast said cloudy morning skies would clear, providing fair and warmer weather about the time the polls open at 2 p. m. (EST). They close at 9 p. m.

Both Impellitteri and Wagner expressed themselves as highly confident as the primary campaign drew to a close. Impellitteri's backers last night forecast a plurality of 175,000 to 200,000, while the Wagner camp foresaw a 230,000 plurality.

Impellitteri, a registered Democrat who won as an independent in 1950, is backed by former Democratic National Chairman James A. Farley, possibly aiming for a comeback and control of the New York State party organization. Elder statesman Bernard Baruch also is on Impellitteri's side.

ADA Candidate

Wagner, son of the late New York senator who authored the New Deal's Wagner Labor Relations Act in the 1930s, has the backing of the pro-New Deal American Administrator Averell Harriman in his corner. Sen. Herbert H. Lehman, Rep. Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., and former Mutual Security Administrator Averell Harriman.

To the victorious faction, it is expected, will go control of the Democratic party in New York State. This influence probably would determine the party's gubernatorial candidate next year and would exert itself in the 1956 Democratic National Convention.

Although the national implications of the contest seem clear, the primary campaign has been waged on a dozen local issues—the recent subway fare increase, charges and denials of underworld connections, rent boosts and city finances.

Mrs. Berry's car struck the rear of a car driven by Mrs. Ruth Malone, also of the Veterans' Housing Project. The trunk of Mrs. Malone's car was dented. Mrs. Malone told police she was stopped on N. Main St. waiting for traffic to move.

At 12:08 p. m. Monday, a car driven by Robert L. Vanscoy of Claridon Ave. was not damaged when struck from the rear by a car driven by Lowell E. Gray, 18, of Caledonia at 365 E. Center St. The front end of Gray's car was damaged but he was able to drive it.

Mull, 28, of 625 N. State St. The front end of Mull's car was damaged in the mishap. Both cars were going west on W. Center St. A car driven by Edwin M. Dix, 40, of 672 E. Church St. had to be towed away after an accident at 4:44 Monday afternoon at the corner of E. Church and Baker St.

Dix was going west on E. Church St. when he tangled with a car driven by Mrs. Jessie S. Barnhart of 503 Vernon Heights Blvd., who was southbound on Baker St. The left side was damaged and the right rear tire was blown out on Mrs. Barnhart's car. The front end of Dix's car was damaged in the crash.

An 11-year-old bicycle rider escaped injury Monday evening at 7:36 when he angled with a car at the corner of Lee St. and Dennison Ave. Thomas Sperry of 429 Scranton Ave. was the rider of the bike.

Driving her car was James R. Hughes, 17, who lives at the rear of 461 Lee St. The right pedal of the bicycle was bent, but no damage was done to the car.

Milton Aphord of 310 Oliver St. was the owner of the parked car which had the left rear end scraped. The right side of Leonard's car was also scraped in the crash.

At 8:28 this morning, the left front end of a car driven by Donald Robinson, 16, of 1133 E. Center St. was damaged in a mishap with a truck driven by Dana L. Cranston, 35, of 608 Universal Ave. The accident happened at the corner of Cummins and E. Church St.

Robinson was southbound on Cummins and Cranston was stopped on Cummins. No damage was reported to the truck.

Police Interference Brings Fine of $25

Raymond A. McClain, 48, of 485 Reed Ave. was fined $25 and costs in municipal court Monday on a charge of interfering with police officers making an arrest. He was arrested after officers said he interfered when they arrested Laird L. Myers, 50, of Bellefontaine.

Myers was charged with having an open bottle of intoxicating liquor in a public place. Police said he was seen pouring the whisky into his coffee at the L-K Restaurant Sunday morning. Myers failed to appear in court Monday and forfeited his bond.

McClain claimed that he was a bystander and had "never seen" Myers before. He pleaded guilty to the interference charge.

Yankees Rewrite Records With Fifth Straight Flag

Champs Have Good Chance In Series, Stengel Admits

By BEN PHLEGAR
AP Sports Writer

The record-breaking New York Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers will meet in the world series starting two weeks from tomorrow with the Yanks slightly favored to make it five straight two ways—five over the Dodgers in five meetings, five in a row over the National League.

Casey Stengel, who rewrote the record book by managing the Yankees to five consecutive pennants, says he thinks he has a good chance of continued success in the fall classic.

"This is a real good club with real good players," Casey said as he relaxed after yesterday's flag clinching 8-5 victory over Cleveland.

"They tell me somebody has made us the favorite in the series and that's mighty nice of them. The way we've been playing, if we can keep it up, I can't see why we shouldn't be considered as having a great chance.

"But I don't think those fellows (the Dodgers) will be scared of the Yankees. They've been in the series before."

Casey said the Yanks will have to get good pitching to win but he implied that he was not awed by Brooklyn's tremendous hitting. He allowed as how his club could hit home runs in Yankee stadium and they probably could hit them in smaller Ebbets Field, too.

Stengel admitted he was glad the tension of the pennant race was over.

"It makes it easy for myself and the wives of the players," he said.

Except for the players and a few diehard fans there really wasn't much tension in the American League flag chase this season. The Yankees held first place all but nine days. They were ahead by as much as 11½ games in late June and never out of the lead after May 11.

Old-Time Rifle Match Feature Of Sesqui Year

The gun that won the Ohio country—the muzzle-loading rifle—will have its day in the Ohio Sesquicentennial celebration on Sept. 26 and 27.

The Ohio Muzzle Loading Rifle Association, of which T. O. Nelson of Crestline is president, will stage a Special Sesquicentennial Shoot near Pleasant Corners about 12 miles south of Columbus on Routes 62 and 3. The matches will be held at the Bill Moose Muzzle Loading Rifle Range, two miles west of Pleasant Corners on Route 665.

Target shooting with muzzle loading rifles is a widely recognized sport nationwide. Performed with a firearm that was in its heyday when the Ohio pioneers were fighting Indians, muzzle loading rifle matches require both technical skill and fine marksmanship.

Participants in the matches create old time atmosphere and add color to the scene by wearing garments that are linked to the rifle—coon skin caps and buck skin breeches.

The high point of the Sesquicentennial shoot will be the aggregate Championship Match for the Ohio Sesquicentennial Trophy, a cup to be awarded permanently. First place winners in the 10 matches leading up to the championship match will receive an Ohio Sesquicentennial Commemorative Medalion. The Medalion is the official issue of the Ohio Sesquicentennial Commission to mark the celebration of 150 years of statehood. Second and third place winners will receive silver and bronze medals.

O. Frederick Shafter of Mansfield is financial secretary and treasurer of the Ohio Muzzle Loading Rifle Association.

BERRA'S HOMER LANDS YANKS 5TH FLAG. New York Yankee catcher Yogi Berra (center) is on the receiving end of a good natured pounding from his jubilant teammates in the dressing room after pacing the Bombers to their record-breaking fifth straight American league flag. Berra's two-run homer in the seventh broke a 5-5 deadlock and led the Yanks to an 8-5 victory over the Cleveland Indians in Yankee stadium. Joining in the celebration (foreground) are the team's co-owners Dan Topping (left) and Del Webb. The Yanks now meet Brooklyn in the World Series starting Sept. 30.

Pro League Attaches Strings to Contract

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The National Football League will offer television a double package of games this fall.—With a string attached.

Commissioner Bert Bell announced yesterday the American Broadcasting Co. will televise all home games and one pre-season contest of the Chicago Cardinals and Chicago Bears this autumn.

The Dumont television network, with Westinghouse paying the bill, has already contracted to televise league games on 21 different dates. The $50,000 package involves almost every club in the 12-team circuit.

The catch is the league's controversial Article 10. It forbids telecasts of any game into an area within 60 miles of a city where another league game is being played—unless the home team waives the restriction. Such consent rarely, if ever, is granted.

Lemon Shoots For 20th Win, Season Split

NEW YORK (AP)—Cleveland's Indians, with the pennant something to think about next year, play the 1953 champions today for the last time this season.

The Yankees clinched their fifth straight American League title yesterday with an 8-5 victory over the Indians. The main goals left for the Tribe are to stick in second place, split the season 11-11 with New York and support Bob Lemon today in his bid for his fifth 20-game season in six years.

Yogi Berra hit the deciding blow in the seventh inning yesterday, his 27th homer with one aboard which broke a 5-5 tie. The Yanks added another run in the same inning on singles by Mickey Mantle and Billy Martin.

Martin kept the Yanks in the game up to the seventh by slamming two doubles which drove in three runs. His seventh inning single accounted for another one.

The Indians got all their runs on five hits off Whitey Ford, but relievers Tom Gorman, Bob Kuzava and Johnny Sain shut them out the last six frames.

Cleveland scored once in the second on singles by Al Rosen and Larry Doby and two walks. Three hits, two walks and a hit batter accounted for four more Cleveland runs in the third.

Little World Series Title Playoff Tilts Postponed by Rain

Little World Series games were postponed Monday night due to wet grounds at Garfield Park. Action will resume Wednesday night.

Carl's Auto Parts and St. Mary No. 1 will meet in the first game scheduled for 7 p. m. Marion Power Shovel and Marion Metal Products will go in the second game at 8:30 p. m.

In action last week, Power Shovel and Metal Products won opening Series games over St. Mary and Carl's.

Navy Guard Pre-Season Choice as Top Lineman

NEW YORK (AP)—Steve Eisenhauer's name, mates, and unles sportswriters and broadcasters miss their guess Navy's "Ike" will be 1953's lineman-of-the-year come December.

In an Associated Press scribes' ballot the Middle guard, lone holdover from last year's All-American line selections, captured 42 pre-season nominations to 30 each for Oklahoma's J. D. Roberts and Duke tackle Ed Meadows. Florida guard Joe D'Agostino was next with 15.

Rio Schedule Will Quiet Wolves, Says Newt Oliver

RIO GRANDE, Ohio (AP)—Rio Grande College, the tiny school with the tremendous basketball team, has announced a 25-game basketball schedule for 1953-54 and Coach Newt Oliver says "it'll keep the wolves off our backs."

"We may not set any records this year," Oliver says, "and we may get our share of losses. But at least it'll keep the wolves off our backs."

Oliver promised last year after the attacks leveled on his schedule that he'd book some "big-time" teams so they can't say we have pushover opposition. Rio Grande averaged more than 100 points a game in winning 39 straight last season.

Here's the 1953-54 schedule:
Nov. 26, Buffalo State Institute at Buffalo, N. Y.

Browns Drill For Packers; 8 To Be Dropped

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Cleveland Browns, with eight players too many, ended a three-day vacation today and started practicing for their final exhibition game Saturday night with the Green Bay Packers.

Coach Paul Brown said he plans to do his best this week to pick the limit of 33 players he will carry into the regular season.

"We've pretty well determined who will make this football team, but there are a couple of spots we're not quite sure about," he said. Brown would not say what players he thought would be released.

Now on the Browns roster are seven ends, seven tackles, eight guards, three centers, three quarterbacks, three fullbacks and 10 halfbacks.

Right tackle John Sandusky probably won't play in Saturday's game here. He suffered a sprained ankle in last Friday's game with the Chicago Bears, and the trainers advised a good rest.

Marion Barons Name Ott Heller Coach

Former Major League Star Also Will Be Active Player

Ehrhardt (Ott) Heller, former major league hockey star, today was named coach of the Marion Barons. He will be listed as an active player.

Announcement of his appointment was made by Frank M. Foster, president of the Marion hockey club.

Player Since 1929

Ott broke into organized hockey with the Springfield Indians of the American League in 1929. Two seasons later he moved up to the New York Rangers of the National League and remained there for 15 years where he was a mainstay of the New Yorkers. Since the 1945-46 season he has starred as a player-coach with St. Paul, Indianapolis and New Haven. Three years ago, he led the Indianapolis Caps to four straight wins over the Cleveland Barons for the American League title.

Foster described Heller as "one of the finest coaches in the game today."

"He is also one of the outstanding physical marvels participating in any form of athletics and particularly in a rough sport like hockey," Foster added.

Last spring, at the age of 43, Heller played on defense for the Cleveland Barons and helped them win the Calder Cup and playoff championship of the American League.

Called Steady Influence

He may not be a regular member of the Marion lineup but will play in as many games as he thinks necessary. His presence on the ice has been called a steady influence on his young charges during recent years "Marion is indeed fortunate in obtaining the services of one of the finest coaches in hockey," Foster said.

Heller expects to move his wife and son to Marion shortly after the season opens next month. His first chore will be the Canadian training camp of the Cleveland Barons where he will meet the members of the Marion team. The camp is slated for later this month.

Season Starts Oct. 14

The Barons will make their first appearance at the Coliseum on Sunday Oct. 11 when the parent Cleveland club comes in for an exhibition game. The regular International Hockey League season will open here on Oct. 14 when the local team entertains the Cincinnati Mohawks. A 64-game schedule has been set up in the nine-team circuit. The Barons will play an equal number of games on the road and at home.

League cities in addition to Marion and Cincinnati, include Milwaukee, Toledo, Troy, Louisville, Johnstown, Pa., Grand Rapids and Fort Wayne

Work is being carried on at the Coliseum now in setting up the rink for the approaching season. Tony Hemmerling, himself a former hockey star, was named general manager of the team earlier.

Girl Wrestlers Star On Armory Card

The preliminary bout will feature Jacob Rosenfield against Ralph Alexander.

Perkins Observatory To Get New Director

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Perkins Observatory, which houses the fourth largest reflecting telescope in the country, will get a new director Oct. 1.

Ohio State University announced today Dr. Geoffrey Keller, 35, will become the observatory's fourth director. He will succeed Dr. Nicholas T. Bobrovnikoff who resigned two years ago.

The observatory, located near Delaware, houses a 69-inch telescope, seventh largest in the world. It is operated jointly by Ohio State and Ohio Wesleyan University.

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Thanks to his friends and neighbors, 83-year-old Edmond G. Shickler had a new outlook on life today. His 100-year-old home was sold for $1,600 recently at a tax forfeiture sale. Yesterday he learned well-wishers had raised enough money to buy back the house and give him the use of it for the rest of his days.

GIRL WRESTLERS Championship Match Thursday At MARION ARMORY

SUZIE STARR
Three top matches have been signed for the Armory Thursday Night. Juanita Coffman, the Indian Wildcat will wrestle Suzie Starr in one of the 2-out-of-3 fall bouts.

For the third straight week Billy Fox will put up his Tri-State Gold Belt against Irish Mike McGee. In fact this should be Bill's toughest assignment, for McGee is one of the toughest of them all and knows all the tricks.

Jacob Rosenfield, the Jewish grappler from Mexico made his debut last Thursday and got disqualified. This week he will be facing a boy who can get just as rough. Ralph Alexander.

Plenty of "Action" on this card so better call Markert & Lewis early for the best ringside. Prices, $1.00—$1.50—Kids 50c.

Archery Field Meet Won By Local Bowman

E. J. Leadenham of 130½ Clover Ave. swept the Marion Archers' Field Championship Meet Sunday at Hickory Grove Lake.

A late starter, Leadenham overtook the leaders in the final few minutes and walked away with the championship trophy.

The morning meet was a 28-target roving shoot and in the afternoon, a precision meet was staged. Archers from Marion, Delaware, New Lexington and other surrounding communities took part.

Fred Cooperrider of 345½ N. Prospect St. took the morning meet with Leadenham a close second after his late start. Don Davison of Delaware took third spot and Charles L. Baker of near Marion placed fourth.

Stepping out in front in the last few minutes, Leadenham won the afternoon shoot. Kitty Cooperrider of 345½ N. Prospect St. came in second. Jay M. Alton of 285 E. George St., president of the local archery club, was third and Frank Louck of 308 E. Farming St. was fourth.

Leadenham for the second time this year took the championship after combined scores of the archers were totaled. Fred Cooperrider was second and his wife, Kitty, talked third. She was the only feminine entrant in the shoot. Louck was fourth.

Mrs. Cooperrider will take part in the state meet Saturday at Springfield. Also attending the 56-target meet there will be her husband, Fred, Louck, Charles Baker, Leadenham, Dr. R. E. Eicher, Davison and other members of the local archers' club. The Marion Archers will hold their next meet sometime in the latter part of October.

Columbus Case To Test School Patrol Powers

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Just how much authority school safety patrols have may be determined in a test case in Columbus Traffic Court Thursday.

School safety patrolmen in many schools in Ohio act as junior traffic cops. The youngsters are usually sponsored by local auto clubs, safety councils or police departments. They aid other school children to cross streets safely in school areas.

The Columbus case developed when a 40-year-old woman allegedly ran down the flag of a patrol boy while driving a car near an elementary school last week. Police said the woman had the right of way through a traffic signal but disobeyed the direction of the patrol boy and failed to stop after striking his flag.

Police said the woman denied hitting the flag and accused the patrol boy of waving it around. The Columbus code says: "No pedestrian, driver of a vehicle or operator of a trackless trolley shall disobey the instructions of any official traffic control signal, device or sign . . . unless at the time otherwise directed by a public officer or member of the school safety patrol stationed in the vicinity of school buildings." The city code is similar to the Ohio General Code. Police said no case had ever tested the city ordinance.

Farmer Finds Rattler Hidden in Bale of Hay

GRANITE FALLS, N. C. (AP) — Curtis Helton, a farmer near here, had just finished harvesting his hay and baling it.

He stooped to load a bale on a truck when he heard a strange hissing. A snake's head protruded about eight inches from the bale of hay.

Helton quickly killed the snake. It was a 3-foot rattler. It had gone through the baling machine without injury.

Long Study Shows Worm Has It Soft

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — A man who devoted 40 years to studying the spiny headed worm found that it has an easy life. All these worms have to do, he said, is just hang on and reproduce.

They don't even have to chew and swallow their food. It is absorbed through their skin.

The worms are known to scientists such as the late Prof. Harley J. Van Cleave as 'acanthocephala'. Van Cleave was with the University of Illinois until his death.

The spiny-headed worm is a parasite that lives in the bodies of animals, birds and fish all over the world. They have been found in Arctic seals, South American birds, whales, and even in man.

Van Cleave culminated almost a lifetime of work on the species of North American Acanthocephala. The book was published recently by the University of Illinois Press.

He said the worm has a large thorny head that it buries in the intestines of a host. The worms range in size from 4/100ths of an inch to nearly 16 inches long.

They have no organs of sense or digestion. Most of their body is simply a pouch containing highly developed reproductive organs. The male seems to exist only for breeding. Once he has served this purpose, he is eliminated from the host's body.

Van Cleave said the worms may have been "parasitic in fishes before the other vertebrate groups had their origin."

The worms are more of a nuisance than a menace, he added, although they can cause considerable local damage to the intestines of hosts.

Attention, Soldier, No Cause To Rush

FORT DIX, N.J. (UP) — A memorandum authorizing unit commanders to convert three-day passes into four-day leaves if a soldier provides proof that additional time was needed for his safe return to duty was issued by army headquarters here in an effort to cut down on accidents that result from the frantic rush to return to duty station at the end of a pass.

The memorandum said such last minute haste "is one of the major causes of motor vehicle accidents involving personnel of this command."

Unit commanders were authorized to lengthen passes to a four-day leave "if the individual concerned provides acceptable evidence that additional time was required for his safe return to duty station."
